

Rendell Primary School: Taking Steps for a Greener Future!

At Rendell Primary School, our dedicated team of Eco Warriors has been busier than ever this year, leading the charge on our new sustainability goals. Their mission is clear: to inspire our school community to think green and take active steps toward protecting our planet.

One of the main focuses this year has been promoting sustainable travel. Our Eco Warriors took to the classrooms, offices and even the kitchen to conduct a hands-on survey, investigating how our pupils and adults travel to school each morning. To share their findings and encourage a healthier, greener commute, the team delivered an inspiring whole-school assembly all about the benefits of walking to school.

To keep the momentum going, the club has been busy getting creative! They have been designing bespoke stickers to be awarded to the champions of our upcoming 'Walk to School Week.' These stickers will be a badge of honour for those choosing to reduce their carbon footprint one step at a time.

In addition to their work on travel, our Eco Warriors have been reflecting on the legacy of a true environmental hero. This year, we are joining the nation in celebrating Sir David Attenborough's 100th birthday. The team has been using this milestone to discuss his vital message and brainstorm fresh ideas for the club's future projects, ensuring that Rendell continues to value and protect nature.

Through their leadership and passion, our Eco Warriors are proving that small steps lead to big changes. They are not just talking about sustainability; they are leading the way and making sure Rendell Primary is playing its part in protecting our world for the future.
